Dear diary

a/ an /the+ noun (a flight)
to+ bare infinitive (to tour)
adjective + noun (historical temples)

I can't forget the experience I had when I was 18.

No one would have thought that the petite French girl that I am, would one day go on a flight to Thailand. I remember that I worked the whole month of July to be finally able to book my plane ticket. Then I went on a 6-week trip. 6 memorable weeks in Thailand. It was a pleasure to tour the whole country. Visiting all those historical temples was just fascinating. I loved the amazing experience of communicating with local people. However, I felt strange with the Thai language.

2) Put the verbs in the right tense/form. (2.5) present continuous for future arrangements

Dear Peter,

I received your letter yesterday. I'm happy that you (to come) are coming to Tunisia next summer holidays. I think you made a good decision and I (to be) am sure you (to enjoy) will enjoy your holidays very much. You can (bring) bring whatever you like with you. I (wait) will wait for you at the airport. model + bare infinitive (can bring)

II. Writing

1) Write a letter to your pen-friend John and tell him about your school.

Describe it first, then tell him about your favourite subjects, your favourite teacher, why you like him/her and your opinion about school.(5)

Dear John,

I hope this letter finds you well. I'm writing to tell you about my school and share some things I really enjoy about it.

My school is a large, beautiful building with spacious classrooms and a big playground. We also have a library filled with interesting books and a computer lab where we can work on projects. The teachers here are friendly, and the students are very kind, which makes it a great place to learn. My favorite subjects are English and science. I enjoy English because I love learning new words and reading stories, and science is always exciting because we get to do experiments.

My favorite teacher is Mrs. Smith, who teaches English. She's so kind and patient, and she always makes the lessons fun. She tells us interesting stories and helps us improve step by step. I like her because she inspires us to do our best.

Overall, I think school is a wonderful place. It's where I can learn, make friends, and discover new things every day. I'd love to hear about your school too—what's it like?

Looking forward to your reply!

2) Your father wants to spend the holidays at home, but you and your sister want to convince him to travel. Write a letter to your father, explaining the advantages of traveling.

Dear Dad,

I hope you're doing well. My sister and I have been thinking a lot about the holidays, and we believe traveling would be a great idea. Let us explain why.

If we travel, we'll be able to explore new places and learn about different cultures. It's an amazing way to spend quality time together as a family. We'll also be able to try new foods and take beautiful pictures to keep as memories.

By traveling, we'll be able to relax and forget about the stress of daily life. Staying at home might be comfortable, but we won't be able to create exciting stories to share with our friends.

We hope you'll think about it, Dad. Traveling will make our holiday unforgettable, and we'll all be able to come back feeling happy and refreshed.

Love,
